

COLUMBIA BANKERS TO BUY U. S. BONDS

Believes They Are Well Prepared and Ready to Meet War Conditions.

LOAN IS TAX FREE

Initial Offering Will Be Two Billion, Bearing the Date July 1, 1917.

The Columbia banks are prepared to subscribe their share of the Liberty Loan, according to statements by the local bankers. W. G. McAdoo, Secretary of the Treasury, has just announced that the initial offering of 3 1/2 per cent loan will be $2,000,000,000, dated July 1, 1917. The date of maturity will be announced later.

W. T. Conley of the Conley-Myers bank says the Columbia banks will subscribe to the loan according to the response of the public. He thinks it is the duty of the banks to help all they can, and he believes the local banks are ready to do their part.

"We have received several inquiries, and our customers are ready to subscribe," said W. E. Smith, cashier of the Exchange National Bank. "This country could lose $40,000,000,000 and would still have more money than any other country in the world."

The Boone County National Bank will buy some of the bonds, according to R. B. Price, Jr. He thinks the Columbia banks are well prepared to meet the war situation.

Alexander Bradford of the Boone County Trust Company says he thinks the Liberty Loan a good investment. His bank already has had several inquiries concerning the bonds, and several of its customers are ready to purchase the bonds as soon as they are ready for distribution.

An official of the Columbia Savings Bank said today that he thought the local banks could stand the shock.

"It is the duty of the city banks to take most of the loan, but the Columbia banks are ready to subscribe their share," said Ira T. G. Stone of the Central Bank. "We must also remember that it is our duty to help the farmers," he said.

The bonds will probably be issued to the twelve Federal Reserve Banks and then distributed to the smaller banks. The bonds are free from all state and federal taxes, except the inheritance tax.

M. U. CATTLE SELL AT $11.85

Feeding Silage Extensively Reduces Cost of Gain.

Prof. H. O. Allison returned yesterday from Chicago, where he delivered two recitals of cattle which had been fed during the winter by the Agricultural Experiment Station. The cattle weighed from 1,153 to 1,297 pounds in Chicago and sold Tuesday at prices ranging from $11.85 to $12.75 a hundred.

These cattle have been fed under the supervision of Professor Allison for 130 days, in 5 lots of 8 steers each. The purpose of this feeding trial was to study the possibilities of reducing the cost of gains by the extensive use of silage in feeding cattle. The result of the test indicates that, under present market conditions, heavy feeding of silage reduces the cost of gain and thereby increases the profit.

The cattle-feeding test this year was a duplicate of a feeding test conducted during 1915-16. It is the intention of the experiment station to publish in bulletin form the results of both these feeding tests.

JOURNALISM WEEK'S FIRST NIGHT FILLED

Speakers are N. Y. Post and Wisconsin State Journal Editors.

WRITING TO BE TOPIC

Japanese Editor and Consul General in Chicago Will Attend Banquet.

The speakers for Journalism Week's first night program on Tuesday, May 15, have been obtained. Oswald Garrison Villard, editorial writer and president of the New York Evening Post, will speak on "The Profession of Journalism." Mr. Villard is author of "John Brown" and a biography. He has written monographs on the early history of Wall Street and has contributed various articles to magazines.

Mr. Villard's address probably will stress the educational and writing side of Journalism as his paper is noted for its "most carefully edited features." The New York Evening Post follows the concept of Journalism laid down in 1801 by its founder, Alexander Hamilton:

"The design of this paper is to diffuse among the people correct information on all interesting subjects, to inculcate just principles in religion, morals and politics and to cultivate a taste for sound literature."

"The Service of the Editor" will be the subject of Richard Lloyd Jones, owner and editor of the Wisconsin State Journal at Madison. Mr. Jones has been editor at various times of the Stamford (Conn.) Telegram, the Washington Times, the Cosmopolitan and Collier's Weekly.

At the "Made-in-Japan Banquet" besides the Japanese Consul General, Saburo Kuroso of Chicago, Katsuji Kato, editor of the Japanese Student, a bi-monthly paper published by Japanese in America, will also speak. Mr. Kato is from Chicago and is Japanese secretary of the Committee on Friendly Relations among Foreign Students.

The programs for Journalism Week will be out this week.

Dean's Secretary to Ft. Riley.

Bryan Wilson of Mexico, Mo., a senior in the School of Law, left last night for his home, where he will spend three days before departing for Fort Riley, Kan. Mr. Wilson resigned his position as private secretary to Dean James. He is the second secretary the dean has lost to the army in less than a month.
